

Cotton Belt train is derailed

A northbound train owned by the Cotton Belt Railroad derailed shortly after 3 p.m. Sunday about 1.5 miles southwest of Bell City at the Ardeola crossing. Injured was the conductor of the train, Henry Carroll, 55, of Pine Bluff, Ark., who received a compression fracture of the vertebra in the neck and a compound fracture in his left thumb. He was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital at Sikeston and may be transferred to a hospital in Pine Bluff, Ark. Also receiving minor injuries was a rear brake-man, Sonny Morgan, 39, of Pine Bluff, Ark., who was treated and released at the Sikeston hospital. The highway patrol said the accident happened when the right rail gave way, causing nine cars to leave the track and strike four cars at the side of the track. The railroad was working throughout Sunday night and early today. Here workers clear the wreckage from the scene.

Sikeston girl hurt in crash

A two-vehicle collision at 2:35 p.m. Sunday resulted in injury to one of the drivers.

Injured was Sonja Berry, 16, of 515 Cole St. She was treated and released from Missouri Delta Community Hospital for a cut on her arm.

Miss Berry was traveling east on Applegate Street at the time of the accident. Officers said her car had stopped for a stop sign and proceeded across Lillian Drive, when it was struck in the side by a truck driven by Rickey Nelson, 16, of 635 E. Kathleen Ave., which was northbound on Lillian Drive.

The Department of Public Safety reported that Miss Berry apparently did not see the Nelson truck. Nelson applied his brakes and swerved, but was not able to avoid strike the Berry car. The truck was towed from the scene.

Retroactive tax breaks preferred

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional tax leaders agreed today that Americans should be given retroactive tax breaks for buying fuel-efficient automobiles or installing home insulation if those parts of President Carter's energy program are enacted into law.

Leaders of both the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee voiced support for giving a variety of administration-proposed energy tax incentives an April 20 effective date, the day Carter presented his program to Congress.

House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., Senate Finance Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., and the ranking Republican members of both committees said they wanted to "to encourage people not to delay making purchases in anticipation of the potential rebates and credits."

Carter proposed rebates for fuel-efficient cars of up to nearly $500, coupled with a tax on gas-guzzlers that would range as high as $2,500 by 1985. The proposed gas-guzzler tax would not be made retroactive.

But persons who have bought cars within the past few weeks getting better than 18 miles per gallon — or who plan to do so later this year — would qualify for the rebates, if the legislation is enacted and if the Congress agrees to the approach advocated by the tax leaders.

Carter also called for tax credits for home insulation of up to $410 and a variety of other tax breaks for energy conservation steps by homes and businesses.

"It is not possible to give any assurance that the rebates and credits will be enacted, but whichever way the Congress acts on these provisions, it is the intention that consumers and businesses will not be better off by delaying their purchases," the committee leaders said.

Their statement came as the Ways and Means Committee began hearings on the tax aspects of Carter's energy plan.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, the leadoff witness, said the tax proposals would "add little in the way of complexity to the income tax laws, especially in regard to individual taxpayers."

Elsewhere, Congress resumed work on a multibillion-dollar tax bill that would cut taxes an average of $111 a year for 46 million taxpayers while raising taxes for two million single workers.

The bill, latest in a series of tax cuts that began in 1975, headed for final approval in the House today. Final Senate approval also is expected early this week and President Carter is likely to sign it into law before the end of the month.

The new annual tax cut will be $5.2 billion for individuals and $2.5 billion for companies, plus another continuation of multibillion-dollar cuts Congress has approved on a temporary basis since 1975.

In all, between now and the end of the 1979 budget year, the bill will mean a $34.1-billion cut in revenue for the federal treasury.

The bill makes permanent changes in standard deductions, to be reflected in payroll tax withholding adjustments beginning June 1.

The tax bill heads a congressional agenda this week that includes action on President Carter's energy program, a $36-billion military hardware bill and a $3.2-billion U.S. military aid bill.

The Senate is to vote on creation of Carter's proposed Department of Energy and a key issue will be how much power to give its Cabinet director to set oil and natural gas prices.

The Senate also is to vote on a $36-billion defense authorization bill, which among other things includes $81.6 million for a new nuclear aircraft carrier just in case Carter and Congress reverse their decisions not to build it.

2 charged with assault

NEW MADRID — Two counts of common assault were filed today against Kenneth Fields, reported to be in his early 20's, and his 16-year-old brother of New Madrid in connection with an assault Sunday at the trailer home occupied by Karen NG, Debbie Scallion and Larry Patterson, the sheriff's office reported today.

The incident reportedly occurred about 9:30 p.m. Sunday when the Fields went to the trailer home, located off Highway 61 near the J & O Body Shop and became involved in an argument with Karen NG. The two allegedly refused to leave and began to assault the woman.

The Scallion woman then went to the rear of the trailer for Patterson, who came to the assistance of Miss NG. He allegedly had a .357 magnum revolver in his back pocket and during the altercation the gun reportedly discharged three times, with one of the shot striking Fields in the tip of the fingers of his left hand. He was treated and released from Missouri Delta Community Hospital at Sikeston.

Thieves hit Homestead

Two thefts, one of a private residence and one of a local business establishment, were reported to the Department of Public Safety over the weekend.

An inventory will be taken to determine the amount of goods stolen from Homestead Distributing Co., 1401 E. Malone Ave., Sunday morning. Several handguns, ammunition, jewelry and some binoculars are believed to have been taken.

Officers said the thief, or thieves, climbed to the roof, removed the screens from the air conditioning units and crawled through the ducts, lowering themselves to the floor of the building by using a rope.

Charles Tisdell, 132 School St., reported the theft of $130 from his home Saturday night. Entry to the home was gained by breaking glass out of a back door to the house.

ENERGY NEWS NOT ALL BAD

If the nation is to formulate a sensible energy policy, we not only need to know where our future energy supplies can reasonably be expected to come from, but who is using energy now and how much of it.

In the latter regard, some useful data has been furnished by Calspan Corp., the Buffalo-based research and development organization. Its analysis indicates that 60 per cent of the nation's total energy use is divided almost equally between residential-commercial heating and transportation. Industrial production consumes the other 40 per cent.

Of that 40 per cent, the manufacturers of chemicals and allied products, the primary metals industry and, surprisingly, the producers of petroleum and coal consume more than half. These are the industries likely to be affected most by the continuing energy crunch, and the ones which are apt to be most interested in investigating alternative energy sources.

A "second tier" of industries next most likely to be hurt by the energy shortage are the producers of paper, stone, clay and glass and food and kindred products. Together, they use up another 30 per cent of the country's industrial energy, leaving 20 per cent for all other industry.

The Calspan study also found that natural gas is currently the dominant fuel in all industry groups, which takes us back to the first question — where we are going to get our fuel in the future. And here there is encouraging word for two other quarters.

According to the American Gas Association, an estimated 32 to 46 more years of domestic natural gas supply can be derived from traditional sources. Conservation would stretch that out, and as the Calspan study suggests, the area promising the greatest scope for more efficient use of this fuel is in residential and commercial heating.

In addition, says the AGA, such sources as increased imports of liquefied natural gas, coal gasification, methane from organic materials and even recovery of methane dissolved in reservoirs of hot salt water in the Gulf of Mexico could add decades to the supplies of gaseous fuel.

Furthermore, says the U.S. Geological Survey, the gas and oil potential of Alaska's Arctic Slope and the Outer Continental Shelf has barely been touched.

In the National Petroleum Reserve in northern Alaska, less than one exploratory well per 400 square miles has ever been drilled, and less than four per cent of the continental shelf belonging to the United States has ever been leased for oil and gas exploration.

None of this is cause for blithe optimism, however. Most of the possible new sources suggested by the American Gas Association are just that — possible. It is one thing to manufacture methane from vegetable matter in the laboratory or to compute the amount of gas that could be made from coal; it is something else to do it on a massive scale. Importing liquefied gas is also fine, as long as we are willing to pay the tariff asked by those who have it to export, and as long as they are willing to sell it.

As for expanding offshore drilling, the physical difficulties and cost are immense, particularly in the Arctic, not to mention the environmental dangers, as the recent platform blowout in the North Sea demonstrated.

What it does mean is that there is cause for concerned alarm, but not for panic. The energy crunch will turn into an energy catastrophe only if we fail to heed the warning signals and fail to take the steps that must be taken now to ensure that the nation has the energy it needs to carry it safely into the next century.

CUT DOWN ON BLUBBER HUNTS

The United States got out of the whale-hunting business and banned imports of whale products five years ago. So far, however, it has been unable to convince the 16-member International Whaling Commission to declare a 10-year moratorium on all whaling.

Actually, only two countries, the Soviet Union and Japan, still operate global whaling fleets. Both have cut the size of their fleets in recent years and no new whaling ships are being built.

Partly through U.S. efforts, the commission last June did lower the annual catch limit on whales to 27,939, a reduction of 6,000.

But this doesn't mean much. The limit has been steadily lowered, yet has always been pegged well above the number of whales the whaling countries figured they could catch. Nor is there any way to enforce the quotas.

Fortunately, the new U.S. 200-mile fisheries limit that goes into effect in March will help protect declining whale populations, even though it was not planned that way, writes William Graves in the National Geographic. It will give this country jurisdiction over some of the world's richest fishing grounds.

And although the total ban urged by the United States still appears years away, whaling is declining and may eventually disappear with or without a push from the whaling commission.

Whale-lovers hope it does before the whales do.

Well, how are we feeling this morning?"

BOTH MAY HAVE

Most of us didn't like it when

Neither did most of us like it

Looked at from the strictly

Looked at from the standpoint

GERM WAR TESTS

Germ Warfare used to be talked about as something the military was prepared to use in a dire emergency to repel or disable an enemy. Now we are beginning to learn that the Army
not only has been prepared for such warfare but actually has been testing it on the United States population without its knowledge or consent.

There had been reports on such tests previously. But not until a Senate subcommittee conducted hearings in the last few days has the extent of those tests been realized. The earlier reports had indicated that the tests had taken place in only eight cities and military installations. But the hearings have shown that there were 239

open-air tests of germ warfare
between 1949 and 1969.

In 27 of those tests, live bacteria were dispersed in such civilian locations as the Pennsylvania Turnpike tunnels, the New York subway, at Key West, Fla., and the San Francisco Bay area. Some of the live bacteria used in those tests later were found to be dangerous to health.
Disease-causing agents were released in 79 of the open-air
tests which included crop-killing experiments in Florida, Kansas,
Maryland, Minnesota, North Dakota, Nebraska and along the Georgia-South Carolina coast and elsewhere.

Harmless tests? Well, the Army acknowledged that one man in San Francisco was known to have died of an infection caused by the type of bacteria used there. Also, there have been three deaths at Fort Detrick, Md., and about 500 illnesses on military bases nationally that were related to the experiments, the Army admits.

Despite all this, the Army report on the situation says the bacteria which caused some deaths and much illness is "so rarely the cause of illness and
the illness resulting is predominantly so trivial that its use... should be continued
even over populated areas when such studies are necessary to the advancement of the BW (biological warfare) program."

Surely the military authorities
don't, the civilian authorities should see to it that this callous
use of unwitting human subjects
for their nefarious experiments is ended promptly and not allowed to resume.

WORKING TOGETHER
FOR ENERGY
What do such diverse agencies

as the Federal Energy Administration, the Department of Agriculture, the Federal Power Commission and the Securities and Exchange
Commission have in common?
Along with some 40 other federal departments, agencies and commissions, they now share responsibility for the development and implementation of a national energy policy. That's one big reason why the nation still doesn't have one.

President Carter has proposed legislation that would consolidate most of the energy functions of the federal bureaucracy into one cabinet-level department. He concedes that this alone won't solve the energy crisis, but without consolidation there's no chance
it ever will be solved.

It's the nature of things in Washington that an agency charged with regulating pipelines (Federal Power Commission) has little interest
in promoting solar power (Energy Research and Development Agency) or more energy-efficient automobiles (Environmental Protection Agency). The energy agencies
all have their own "specialized perspectives," as Carter put it, which prevent them from seeing the forest for the trees. Even worse, they often wind up working at cross purposes.

Presidents Nixon and Ford
previously proposed a consolidated energy department;
both plans died because congressional committee chairmen were reluctant to give up their oversight roles in the energy field. But the first congressional reaction to Carter's plan was remarkably positive.

About the only controversial part of the president's plan is his proposal to meld the Federal Power Commission, now an independent regulatory agency,
into the new energy department.
Carter sidetracked other areas
of possible controversy by allowing the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to remain independent and leaving some responsibility for the leasing of federal lands with the Interior Department. Logic would dictate that both functions belong in the consolidated energy department, but their exclusion is a small price to pay for congressional approval of the Carter plan.

Senator Henry Jackson of Washington who would become the Senate's leading energy overseer under the reorganization plan, predicts Congress will pass the Carter legislation before the month is out. That would be about three years late but, particularly in this case, better than never.

A TURN FOR THE NURSE

BUILDING CODES
AND ENERGY SAVING

Since the oil crisis in late 1973,
the Resources Survey Committee of the Science and Technology Agency has recommended energy conservation for nonindustrial buildings (office buildings, apartment houses, etc.). These account for about 20 per cent of Japan's total energy consumption. As a result, various innovations have been made in the design and construction of office buildings.

In office buildings 39 per cent
of all energy consumed is used for illumination and business machines, 33 per cent for heating and air conditioning, 17
per cent for water supply,
drainage, elevators, etc. and 11
per cent for gas (hot water supply). Lighting and temperature regulation are receiving particular attention in the drive to save energy.

Two methods are now being studied to reduce the amount of energy consumed by lighting:

the combined use of localized lighting and the enhancement of lighting efficiency. The combined use of localized lighting is intended to raise the intensity of illumination on the desks where people work; electricity will be saved because the total number of fluorescent lamps used will be reduced. Lighting efficiency can be improved by proper placement of lamps.

To help conserve energy,
architects and designers must take into consideration the country's climate, and its four distinct seasons. The most ideal form is a rectangle with the two long sides facing north and south
and the two short sides facing east and west. Those spaces which are not air conditioned or heated, such as staircases and equipment rooms, should be located at the eastern and western ends of the building. But it is rarely easy to apply this form, since office buildings are constructed in congested urban areas and their size and shape
are largely restricted by site conditions.

Japan has four months during which natural ventilation is sufficient for a comfortable life
— from mid-April to mid-June and from mid-September to mid-November. If natural ventilation is possible during these periods, the electric power needed to air-condition a building can be curtailed by 20 to 40 per cent a year. However, windows in high-rise buildings
can present safety hazards.
Careful studies have determined that sufficient natural ventilation is possible if the window opening is equivalent to 0.5 to 0.7 per cent of the floor space.

An attempt is being made to collect the heat radiated

by human bodies and the heat of air warmed by sunshine. This method, which uses a heat pump to absorb heat from the air, can cut back annual energy consumption by two thirds when compared with the conventional system which combines boilers and refrigerating devices.

Boilers and refrigerators have traditionally been operated constantly under small loads with low efficiency. The introduction of computers,
however, will make it possible to adjust operating hours on the basis of such factors as room temperature and the number of occupants.

The input of meteorological statistics will enable programming on annual bases. As much as 40 to 70 per cent of the electric power needed for air conditioning is provided by auxiliary machines such as pumps and blowers. In order to reduce their usage, efforts are now being made to develop a program for the design of an optimum control network to minimize total equipment and power costs.

Royal 'Mounties' Did It:

Mafia prospering nationally
while FBI is hamstrung

NEW YORK — There's an eerie silence on the downtown Manhattan street where the Mafia dons gather for unmolested, soft conversation, the best pasta and the choicest pastry. There is wonderment.
Puzzlement.

It hasn't been publicly reported, but during the first days of May, some "wild men"
broke the combine's cardinal code. Unknowns kidnaped the Genovese "family's" all-powerful underboss, 67-year-old Eli Zaccardi.

Underworld and federal agents' grapevines, sizzling with terse reports, have it that Zaccardi's ransom was $200,000.
It isn't the money. It's the insult.
The Genovese combine, weakly
led by the ailing Frank "Funzi" Tieri, is the richest, most sprawling crime syndicate
operation in the land.

It could pay millions in shoebox cash. But the "snatch" astounds its capos.

Who would dare kidnap such an entrenched underboss and thus violate one of the most sacred Mafia codes? It means
war. Zaccardi probably is dead.
If the snatchers released him, he would be "honor bound" to hunt
them down. Wipe them out.

Now the word will be spread
by someone that the molybdenum-tough mobster, ex-convict Carmine Galante, boss
of the Joe Bananas crowd allegedly on the gloryroad to the coveted national boss of bosses cloak, hit Zaccardi. Why? The answers will be to soften up the rival Genovese crowd and to prove how daring Galante's Bonanno family can be.

But it isn't that simple.
Galante, now 67 years old, has spent some 20 years of his life in prison. Now he's out under parole until 1980. Each week he checks in by phone with his parole officer. Each month, he shows up personally. He fears returning to prison as one does plunging into a lair of boa
constrictors.

And there will also be reports that the snatch might have been the Machiavellian maneuvers of the 63-year-old, Apigli Dellacrocce, alleged boss of the late Carlo Gambino's family.
Dellacrocce, according to the legendry, is Galante's revival
for the don-ship of all dons.

But such conjecture is much like trying to explain Einstein's theory of relativity with kindergarten erector sets. Actually these days there is very little of what the federales call "hard information." There have been many unsolved killings of top Mafia dons and even underbosses. And now there is Zaccardi's disappearance.
Insiders hear that the powerful syndicate chiefs themselves know little.

They do note that those being cut down, either with the now famous .22 calibre gun with silencers attached or with old-fashioned slugs, are in the 60-
to early 70-years-of-age bracket.
Despite the blood-letting, the Mafia is prospering — thousands of "legitimate" businesses,
international banking,
respectable lobbyists in state legislatures as well as the Congress, man-of-the-year awards. All in all, great prizes.

Especially now, with the beginning of the era of legal gambling casinos.

Not to forget the quick profits
of "protected" garment shops
using illegal alien work forces.
Or the big unions' suspect pension funds so much in the news these days. And all of it so "legal," why trouble with messy narcotics and introduce numbers rackets and protection from the new ethnic mobs of the central cities?

So the younger men are moving in — hard and bloody.
How could this happen after all the years of counterattack against organized crime? As far back as 1958, there was a two-volume FBI analysis of the Mafia — full, replete with reports of international "meetings" as far off as Marseilles (France).

The Justice Department's organized crime section grew from 10 lawyers in 1954 to 400
available today.

The counterattack has been
bogged down by a hamstringing FBI — which now must spend $6.4 million a year maintaining its Freedom of Information and Privacy Act branch.

There has been so much
paralytic rivalry between the regular U.S. Attorneys and the anti-organized crime strike forces, that both sides have been practically immobilized. This running nine-year-old feud between the U.S. Attorneys (who've wanted the anti-crime task forces wiped out) and the strike forces themselves has been so devastating to effective investigations that the Mafia
has had a romping field day,
says one reputable federal lawman.

This chap says that "the best friend of the Mafia has had is that high official inside the criminal justice system who fought the strike forces and ground us down from 17 to 13 ineffective units. The federal agencies stopped cooperating with us. They just didn't know how long we'd last and whether we were wasting their time and information."

One top official points to how
the Royal Canadian Mounted Police crushed Canada's most powerful organized crime mob — Montreal's Cotroni brothers'
"family." It's related to New York's Bananas crowd. In the '50s Galante went up to Canada
and put them together.
According to one official, "they"
were in everything — you name
it, they controlled it in Canada.

So the RCMP bugged them
electronically for four years.
Then the "mounties" put their information before a royal commission of inquiry into organized crime. The Cotroni crowd was given immunity. The courts ruled they had to testify.
The mobsters refused. The courts sent them to prison late in 1976. This so decimated the "family," the RCMP now has turned to probing "French gangs."

Says one American crime
fighter, "If we had the RCMP's freedom of action, we could wipe out the Mafia in three years. But we're bogged down. If we buy anyone, we must give them a transcript when we remove the tap. That's the law. How can you fight organized crime by feeding
the families what you've got on them?"

So the Mafia prospers. It's a second government.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter's Clean Air Switch

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON: The echoes of the 1976 presidential campaign are beginning to haunt Jimmy Carter. As a candidate,
he denounced President Gerald Ford for postponing
clean air standards until 1982.
But as president, Carter has now pushed back the deadline
until 1983.

In a ringing campaign declaration, Candidate Carter contended last year: "It is high time that we had a president
who is willing to stick to commitments to clean air." He charged that "the automobile manufacturers have dragged their feet and have found a sympathetic ear in the White House."

Then he solemnly pledged: "I will renew this country's commitment to clean air. Automobile manufacturers must be required to meet the emission standards ... just as soon as lead times allow."

But now that Carter is installed in the White House, he is singing a different tune. He summoned energy czar James Schlesinger, environmental chief Douglas Costle and Federal Energy Administrator
John O'Leary to the White House on April 16 to discuss the clean air problem.

The session was supposed to be secret, but a "memorandum
for the files" reveals that Carter wants to put off some
clean air standards until 1983.
This is a year later than the Ford deadline that Carter criticized.

Meanwhile, automobiles continue to spray poisons into the air through millions of exhaust pipes. Among the most deadly are nitrogen oxides, which are downright dangerous for people to breathe. Under the Clean Air Act, the level of nitrogen oxides per mile was supposed to be reduced to four-tenths of a gram by 1976.

This requirement was never taken seriously by the Environmental Protection Agency,
which was supposed to implement the law. During the Nixon era, Deputy Assistant Administrator Eric Stork seemed more concerned about the tribulations of the automobile industry than the welfare of the nation's lungs. Yet he is still at the same old desk, and he is still sympathetic to the auto crowd.

Stork is in no hurry to curb
the harmful nitrous vapors,
therefore, if it might work a hardship on the auto companies. He reported in an April 8 memo to Administrator

Douglas Costle that the 4 gram level had been achieved only in the Volvo and possibly the Saab. "The industry as a whole," he wrote, "has not taken the 4 nitrogen oxides (level) seriously."

Of course, it was up to the
Environmental Protection Agency to see that the auto industry took the law seriously.
Now President Carter seems to be even more lenient than his predecessor was. The nitrogen oxides level was supposed to be down to 4 gram by 1976. But at the secret White House meeting, "the President decided (that the) ... nitrogen oxides
standard would be 1.0 by 1981," according to the confidential
memo.

Not until 1983 would Carter
bring the level down to 4
gram. Then he would still leave it to the "discretion" of the administrator whether to comply with the law or to put the deadline off indefinitely.

The president's leniency caught some of Costle's aides
by surprise. They had prepared an advance draft of some tough testimony that Cost-le had planned to deliver to the House health subcommittee. He had intended to stress strongly the dangers of nitrous poisons. But according to a memo, it was decided after the White House meeting that the draft was "not the statement to be used. Rather, a shorter statement will be used."

Costle's final testimony turned out to be not only shorter but weaker. The original statement was thrown out,
but we have obtained a copy of the secret draft.

Costle had intended to testify
that animal studies of nitrogen

oxides showed "death from respiratory infections and structural changes ... in lung tissue." The nitrous compounds also form photochemical matter which causes still more diseases.

But these damning passages were cut out of the prepared testimony that Costle finally delivered. And the campaign promise of 1976 has already been forgotten in 1977.

Footnote: In fairness, it should be added that the Carter administration is doing better than the Ford administration in cleaning up the less controversial carbon monoxide
and hydrocarbon emissions.
Costle, in a long talk with us,
said that 1983 was adopted as the deadline only after detailed, objective studies showing it was the earliest practical date for the 4 standard. To get the deadly carbon monoxide under control and to attain some fuel economy, he said, there had to be a trade-off
with the nitrous compounds.
"We are trying to get it back on the track," he said.

Tattered Flags: The American flag has been desecrated
in Panama by being ripped into shreds. The red, white and blue cloth comes from a North Carolina firm and was intended for the Bi-centennial.
But the company wound up with an excess of the cheap material
and sold it to a Panamanian
firm for use as furniture stuffing.

Tattered strips of the star-spangled cloth were spotted
being used to shine shoes,
however, and an informant,
complained to the U.S. embassy. The North Carolina firm has now agreed to buy back
the cloth.

ENERGY NEWS NOT ALL BAD
If the nation is to formulate a sensible energy policy, we not only need to know where our future energy supplies can reasonably be expected to come from, but who is using energy now and how much of it.

In the latter regard, some useful data has been furnished by Calspan Corp., the Buffalo-based research and development organization. Its analysis indicates that 60 per cent of the nation's total energy use is divided almost equally between residential-commercial heating and transportation. Industrial production consumes the other 40 per cent.

Of that 40 per cent, the manufacturers of chemicals and allied products, the primary metals industry and, surprisingly, the producers of petroleum and coal consume more than half. These are the industries likely to be affected most by the continuing energy crunch, and the ones which are apt to be most interested in investigating alternative energy sources.

A "second tier" of industries next most likely to be hurt by the energy shortage are the producers of paper, stone, clay and glass and food and kindred products. Together, they use up another 30 per cent of the country's industrial energy, leaving 20 per cent for all other industry.

The Calspan study also found that natural gas is currently the dominant fuel in all industry groups, which takes us back to the first question — where we are going to get our fuel in the future. And here there is encouraging word for two other quarters.

According to the American Gas Association, an estimated 32 to 46 more years of domestic natural gas supply can be derived from traditional sources. Conservation would stretch that out, and as the Calspan study suggests, the area promising the greatest scope for more efficient use of this fuel is in residential and commercial heating.

In addition, says the AGA, such sources as increased imports of liquefied natural gas, coal gasification, methane from organic materials and even recovery of methane dissolved in reservoirs of hot salt water in the Gulf of Mexico could add decades to the supplies of gaseous fuel.

Furthermore, says the U.S. Geological Survey, the gas and oil potential of Alaska's Arctic Slope and the Outer Continental Shelf has barely been touched.

In the National Petroleum Reserve in northern Alaska, less than one exploratory well per 400 square miles has ever been drilled, and less than four per cent of the continental shelf belonging to the United States has ever been leased for oil and gas exploration.

None of this is cause for blithe optimism, however. Most of the possible new sources suggested by the American Gas Association are just that — possible. It is one thing to manufacture methane from vegetable matter in the laboratory or to compute the amount of gas that could be made from coal; it is something else to do it on a massive scale. Importing liquefied gas is also fine, as long as we are willing to pay the tariff asked by those who have it to export, and as long as they are willing to sell it.

As for expanding offshore drilling, the physical difficulties and cost are immense, particularly in the Arctic, not to mention the environmental dangers, as the recent platform blowout in the North Sea demonstrated.

What it does mean is that there is cause for concerned alarm, but not for panic. The energy crunch will turn into an energy catastrophe only if we fail to heed the warning signals and fail to take the steps that must be taken now to ensure that the nation has the energy it needs to carry it safely into the next century.

CUT DOWN ON BLUBBER HUNTS
The United States got out of the whale-hunting business and banned imports of whale products five years ago. So far, however, it has been unable to convince the 16-member International Whaling Commission to declare a 10-year moratorium on all whaling.

Actually, only two countries, the Soviet Union and Japan, still operate global whaling fleets. Both have cut the size of their fleets in recent years and no new whaling ships are being built.

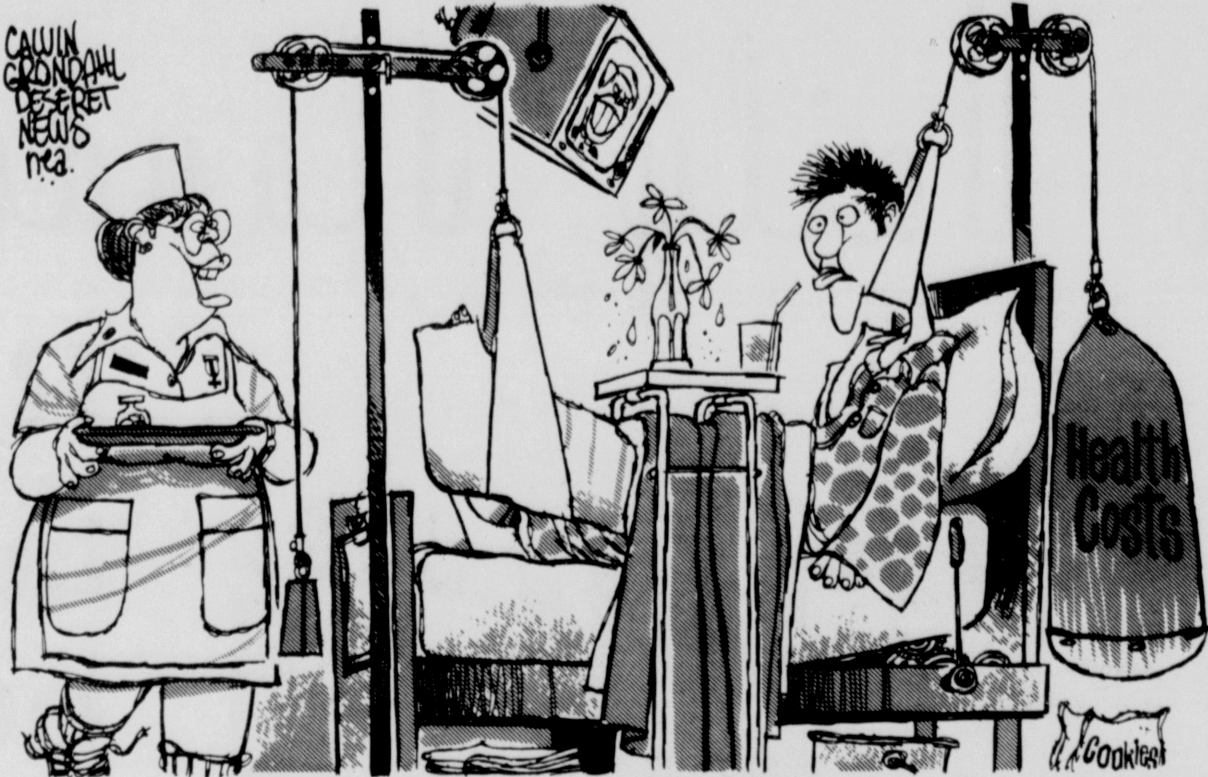

Partly through U.S. efforts, the commission last June did lower the annual catch limit on whales to 27,939, a reduction of 6,000.

But this doesn't mean much. The limit has been steadily lowered, yet has always been pegged well above the number of whales the whaling countries figured they could catch. Nor is there any way to enforce the quotas.

Fortunately, the new U.S. 200-mile fisheries limit that goes into effect in March will help protect declining whale populations, even though it was not planned that way, writes William Graves in the National Geographic. It will give this country jurisdiction over some of the world's richest fishing grounds.

And although the total ban urged by the United States still appears years away, whaling is declining and may eventually disappear with or without a push from the whaling commission.

Whale-lovers hope it does before the whales do.

Well, how are we feeling this morning?"

Most of us didn't like it when President Ford pardoned President Nixon.

Neither did most of us like it when President Carter pardoned draft evaders.

But both men may be right and we may be wrong.

Looked at from the strictly worldly viewpoint, both were wrong.

Looked at from the standpoint of "What would Christ have done?" they were both right. The Savior taught compassion and forgiveness, and love for one's enemy, precepts to which many of us give anything but lip service.

It is something to ponder before we criticize either of these two Presidents for their putting into practice what many of us preach, but do not practice.

GERM WAR TESTS
Germ Warfare used to be talked about as something the military was prepared to use in a dire emergency to repel or disable an enemy. Now we are beginning to learn that the Army not only has been prepared for such warfare but actually has been testing it on the United States population without its knowledge or consent.

There had been reports on such tests previously. But not until a Senate subcommittee conducted hearings in the last few days has the extent of those tests been realized. The earlier reports had indicated that the tests had taken place in only eight cities and military installations. But the hearings have shown that there were 239 open-air tests of germ warfare between 1949 and 1969.

In 27 of those tests, live bacteria were dispersed in such civilian locations as the Pennsylvania Turnpike tunnels, the New York subway, at Key West, Fla., and the San Francisco Bay area. Some of the live bacteria used in those tests later were found to be dangerous to health. Disease-causing agents were released in 79 of the open-air tests which included crop-killing experiments in Florida, Kansas, Maryland, Minnesota, North Dakota, Nebraska and along the Georgia-South Carolina coast and elsewhere.

Harmless tests? Well, the Army acknowledged that one man in San Francisco was known to have died of an infection caused by the type of bacteria used there. Also, there have been three deaths at Fort Detrick, Md., and about 500 illnesses on military bases nationally that were related to the experiments, the Army admits.

Despite all this, the Army report on the situation says the bacteria which caused some deaths and much illness is "so rarely the cause of illness and the illness resulting is predominantly so trivial that its use... use... should be continued even over populated areas when such studies are necessary to the advancement of the BW (biological warfare) program."

Surely the military authorities don't, the civilian authorities should see to it that this callous use of unwitting human subjects for their nefarious experiments is ended promptly and not allowed to resume.

WORKING TOGETHER FOR ENERGY
What do such diverse agencies

as the Federal Energy Administration, the Department of Agriculture, the Federal Power Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission have in common? Along with some 40 other federal departments, agencies and commissions, they now share responsibility for the development and implementation of a national energy policy. That's one big reason why the nation still doesn't have one.

President Carter has proposed legislation that would consolidate most of the energy functions of the federal bureaucracy into one cabinet-level department. He concedes that this alone won't solve the energy crisis, but without consolidation there's no chance it ever will be solved.

It's the nature of things in Washington that an agency charged with regulating pipelines (Federal Power Commission) has little interest in promoting solar power (Energy Research and Development Agency) or more energy-efficient automobiles (Environmental Protection Agency). The energy agencies all have their own "specialized perspectives," as Carter put it, which prevent them from seeing the forest for the trees. Even worse, they often wind up working at cross purposes.

Presidents Nixon and Ford previously proposed a consolidated energy department; both plans died because congressional committee chairmen were reluctant to give up their oversight roles in the energy field. But the first congressional reaction to Carter's plan was remarkably positive.

About the only controversial part of the president's plan is his proposal to meld the Federal Power Commission, now an independent regulatory agency, into the new energy department. Carter sidetracked other areas of possible controversy by allowing the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to remain independent and leaving some responsibility for the leasing of federal lands with the Interior Department. Logic would dictate that both functions belong in the consolidated energy department, but their exclusion is a small price to pay for congressional approval of the Carter plan.

Senator Henry Jackson of Washington who would become the Senate's leading energy overseer under the reorganization plan, predicts Congress will pass the Carter legislation before the month is out. That would be about three years late but, particularly in this case, better than never.

BUILDING CODES
AND ENERGY SAVING

Since the oil crisis in late 1973, the Resources Survey Committee of the Science and Technology Agency has recommended energy conservation for nonindustrial buildings (office buildings, apartment houses, etc.). These account for about 20 per cent of Japan's total energy consumption. As a result, various innovations have been made in the design and construction of office buildings.

In office buildings 39 per cent of all energy consumed is used for illumination and business machines, 33 per cent for heating and air conditioning, 17 per cent for water supply, drainage, elevators, etc. and 11 per cent for gas (hot water supply). Lighting and temperature regulation are receiving particular attention in the drive to save energy.

Two methods are now being studied to reduce the amount of energy consumed by lighting: the combined use of localized lighting and the enhancement of lighting efficiency. The combined use of localized lighting is intended to raise the intensity of illumination on the desks where people work; electricity will be saved because the total number of fluorescent lamps used will be reduced. Lighting efficiency can be improved by proper placement of lamps.

To help conserve energy, architects and designers must take into consideration the country's climate, and its four distinct seasons. The most ideal form is a rectangle with the two long sides facing north and south and the two short sides facing east and west. Those spaces which are not air conditioned or heated, such as staircases and equipment rooms, should be located at the eastern and western ends of the building. But it is rarely easy to apply this form, since office buildings are constructed in congested urban areas and their size and shape are largely restricted by site conditions.

Japan has four months during which natural ventilation is sufficient for a comfortable life — from mid-April to mid-June and from mid-September to mid-November. If natural ventilation is possible during these periods, the electric power needed to air-condition a building can be curtailed by 20 to 40 per cent a year. However, windows in high-rise buildings can present safety hazards. Careful studies have determined that sufficient natural ventilation is possible if the window opening is equivalent to 0.5 to 0.7 per cent of the floor space.

An attempt is being made to collect the heat radiated

by human bodies and the heat of air warmed by sunshine. This method, which uses a heat pump to absorb heat from the air, can cut back annual energy consumption by two thirds when compared with the conventional system which combines boilers and refrigerating devices.

Boilers and refrigerators have traditionally been operated constantly under small loads with low efficiency. The introduction of computers, however, will make it possible to adjust operating hours on the basis of such factors as room temperature and the number of occupants.

The input of meteorological statistics will enable programming on annual bases. As much as 40 to 70 per cent of the electric power needed for air conditioning is provided by auxiliary machines such as pumps and blowers. In order to reduce their usage, efforts are now being made to develop a program for the design of an optimum control network to minimize total equipment and power costs.

Royal 'Mounties' Did It:
Mafia prospering nationally while FBI is hamstrung

NEW YORK— There's an eerie silence on the downtown Manhattan street where the Mafia dons gather for the molested, soft conversation, the best pasta and the choicest pastry. There is wonderment. Puzzlement.

It hasn't been publicly reported, but during the first days of May, some "wild men" broke the combine's cardinal code. Unknowns kidnapped the Genovese "family's" all-powerful underboss, 67-year-old Eli Zaccardi.

Underworld and federal agents' grapevines, sizzling with terse reports, have it that Zaccardi's ransom was $200,000. It isn't the money. It's the insult. The Genovese combine, weakly led by the ailing Frank "Funzi" Tieri, is the richest, most sprawling crime syndicate operation in the land.

It could pay millions in shoebox cash. But the "snatch" astounds its capos.

Who would dare kidnap such an entrenched underboss and thus violate one of the most sacred Mafia codes? It means war. Zaccardi probably is dead. If the snatchers released him, he would be "honor bound" to hunt them down. Wipe them out.

Now the word will be spread by someone that the molybdenum-tough mobster, ex-convict Carmine Galante, boss of the Joe Bananas crowd allegedly on the gloryroad to the coveted national boss of bosses cloak, hit Zaccardi. Why? The answers will be to soften up the rival Genovese crowd and to prove how daring Galante's Bonanno family can be.

But it isn't that simple. Galante, now 67 years old, has spent some 20 years of his life in prison. Now he's out under parole until 1980. Each week he checks in by phone with his parole officer. Each month, he shows up personally. He fears returning to prison as one does plunging into a lair of boa constrictors.

And there will also be reports that the snatch might have been the Machiavellian maneuvers of the 63-year-old, Anjello Dellacroe, alleged boss of the late Carlo Gambino's family. Dellacroe, according to the legend, is Galante's revival for the don-ship of all dons.

But such conjecture is much like trying to explain Einstein's theory of relativity with kindergarten eraser sets. Actually these days there is very little of what the federals call "hard information." There have been many unsolved killings of top Mafia dons and even underbosses. And now there is Zaccardi's disappearance. Insiders hear that the powerful syndicate chiefs themselves know little.

They do note that those being cut down, either with the now famous 22 calibre gun with silencers attached or with old-fashioned slugs, are in the 60- to early 70-years-of-age bracket.

Despite the blood-letting, the Mafia is prospering — thousands of "legitimate" businesses, international banking, respectable lobbyists in state legislatures as well as the Congress, man-of-the-year awards. All in all, great prizes.

Especially now, with the beginning of the era of legal gambling casinos.

Not to forget the quick profits of "protected" garment shops using illegal alien work forces. Or the big unions' suspect pension funds so much in the news these days. And all of it so "legal," why trouble with messy narcotics and introduce numbers rackets and protection from the new ethnic mobs of the central cities?

So the younger men are moving in — hard and bloody. How could this happen after all the years of counterattack against organized crime? As far back as 1958, there was a two-volume FBI analysis of the Mafia — full, replete with reports of international "meets" as far off as Marseilles (France).

The Justice Department's organized crime section grew from 10 lawyers in 1954 to 400 available today.

The counterattack has been bogged down by a hamstrung FBI — which now must spend $6.4 million a year maintaining its Freedom of Information and Privacy Act branch.

There has been so much paralytic rivalry between the regular U.S. Attorneys and the anti-organized crime strike forces, that both sides have been practically immobilized. This running nine-year-old feud between the U.S. Attorneys (who've wanted the anti-crime task forces wiped out) and the strike forces themselves has been so devastating to effective investigations that the Mafia has had a romping field day, says one reputable federal lawyer.

This chap says that "the best friend of the Mafia has had is that high official inside the criminal justice system who fought the strike forces and ground us down from 17 to 13 ineffective units. The federal agencies stopped cooperating with us. They just didn't know how long we'd last and whether we were wasting their time and information."

One top official points to how the Royal Canadian Mounted Police crushed Canada's most powerful organized crime mob — Montreal's Cotroni brothers' "family." It's related to New York's Bananas crowd. In the '50s Galante went up to Canada and put them together. According to one official, "they" were in everything — you name it, they controlled it in Canada.

So the RCMP bugged them electronically for four years. Then the "mounties" put their information before a royal commission of inquiry into organized crime. The Cotroni crowd was given immunity. The courts ruled they had to testify. The mobsters refused. The courts sent them to prison late in 1976. This so decimated the "family," the RCMP now has turned to probing "French gangs."

Says one American crime fighter, "If we had the RCMP's freedom of action, we could wipe out the Mafia in three years. But we're bogged down. If we buy anyone, we must give them a transcript when we remove the tap. That's the law. How can you fight organized crime by feeding the families what you've got on them?"

So the Mafia prospers. It's a second government.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter's Clean Air Switch

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON: The echoes of the 1976 presidential campaign are beginning to haunt Jimmy Carter. As a candidate, he denounced President Gerald Ford for postponing clean air standards until 1982. But as president, Carter has now pushed back the deadline until 1983.

In a ringing campaign declaration, Candidate Carter contended last year: "It is high time that we had a president who is willing to stick to commitments to clean air." He charged that "the automobile manufacturers have dragged their feet and have found a sympathetic ear in the White House."

Then he solemnly pledged: "I will renew this country's commitment to clean air. Automobile manufacturers must be required to meet the emission standards ... just as soon as lead times allow."

But now that Carter is installed in the White House, he is singing a different tune. He summoned energy czar James Schlesinger, environmental chief Douglas Costle and Federal Energy Administrator John O'Leary to the White House on April 16 to discuss the clean air problem.

The session was supposed to be secret, but a "memorandum for the files" reveals that Carter wants to put off some clean air standards until 1983. This is a year later than the Ford deadline that Carter criticized.

Meanwhile, automobiles continue to spray poisons into the air through millions of exhaust pipes. Among the most deadly are nitrogen oxides, which are downright dangerous for people to breathe. Under the Clean Air Act, the level of nitrogen oxides per mile was supposed to be reduced to four-tenths of a gram by 1976.

This requirement was never taken seriously by the Environmental Protection Agency, which was supposed to implement the law. During the Nixon era, Deputy Assistant Administrator Eric Stork seemed more concerned about the tribulations of the automobile industry than the welfare of the nation's lungs. Yet he is still at the same old desk, and he is still sympathetic to the auto crowd.

Stork is in no hurry to curb the harmful nitrous vapors, therefore, if it might work a hardship on the auto companies. He reported in an April 8 memo to Administrator Douglas Costle that the 4 gram level had been achieved only in the Volvo and possibly the Saab. "The industry as a whole," he wrote, "has not taken the 4 nitrogen oxides (level) seriously."

Of course, it was up to the Environmental Protection Agency to see that the auto industry took the law seriously. Now President Carter seems to be even more lenient than his predecessor was. The nitrogen oxides level was supposed to be down to 4 gram by 1976. But at the secret White House meeting, "the President decided (that the) ... nitrogen oxides standard would be 1.0 by 1981," according to the confidential memo.

Not until 1983 would Carter bring the level down to 4 gram. Then he would still leave it to the "discretion" of the administrator whether to comply with the law or to put the deadline off indefinitely.

The president's leniency caught some of Costle's aides by surprise. They had prepared an advance draft of some tough testimony that Costle had planned to deliver to the House health subcommittee. He had intended to stress strongly the dangers of nitrous poisons. But according to a memo, it was decided after the White House meeting that the draft was "not the statement to be used. Rather, a shorter statement will be used."

Costle's final testimony turned out to be not only shorter but weaker. The original statement was thrown out, but we have obtained a copy of the secret draft.

Costle had intended to testify that animal studies of nitrogen oxides showed "death from respiratory infections and structural changes ... in lung tissue." The nitrous compounds also form photochemical matter which causes still more diseases.

But these damning passages were cut out of the prepared testimony that Costle finally delivered. And the campaign promise of 1976 has already been forgotten in 1977.

Footnote: In fairness, it should be added that the Carter administration is doing better than the Ford administration in cleaning up the less controversial carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon emissions. Costle, in a long talk with us, said that 1983 was adopted as the deadline only after detailed, objective studies showing it was the earliest practical date for the 4 standard. To get the deadly carbon monoxide under control and to attain some fuel economy, he said, there had to be a trade-off with the nitrous compounds. "We are trying to get it back on the track," he said.

Tattered Flags: The American flag has been desecrated in Panama by being ripped into shoddy rags. The red, white and blue cloth comes from a North Carolina firm and was intended for the Bicentennial. But the company wound up with an excess of the cheap material and sold it to a Panamanian firm for use as furniture stuffing.

Tattered strips of the star-spangled cloth were spotted being used to shine shoes, however, and an informant, complained to the U.S. embassy. The North Carolina firm has now agreed to buy back the cloth.

Dear Mr. Blanton,
The people of Sikeston can now breathe easier. Our town is not lacking for entertainment. We have a choice — adult movies, adult book stores, game rooms, or the return of last Summer's sensational young lady to a local massage parlor. Each year citizens are fined for allowing weeds to grow on their property. It seems strange that we should now sit back calmly as this corruption begins to choke our town.

Today's news in brief

Zambia in state of war

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — President Kenneth Kaunda said today Zambia is in a "state of war" with neighboring whiteruled Rhodesia.

Kaunda announced that the Zambian army had been placed on full alert and issued orders that any aircraft crossing into Zambian airspace from Rhodesia be "shot on sight."

"I wish to tell all Zambians today that we are in a state of war with Rhodesia," Kaunda told a news conference in this capital city.

"We will fight and I have already directed all my boys to shoot any Rhodesian planes on sight using Zambian airspace."

This black-governed country of five million people, on Rhodesia's northwestern border, has served as a base for black nationalist guerrillas fighting a four-year-old war to topple the white Rhodesian government. Mozambique and Botswana are other guerrilla bases for crossborder infiltration.

Mondale, Young resume tours

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Vice President Walter Mondale was meeting with top Portuguese officials today as Ambassador Andrew Young resumed his African tour after flying to Lisbon for a 90-minute discussion with the vice president. The Carter administration's ambassador to the United Nations flew up from West Africa to "touch base" with Mondale, who meets on Thursday with Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa in Vienna. The vice president announced that Young's controversial visit to South Africa next weekend is "definitely on."

20 percent undecided in Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Israeli election campaign ends today with public opinion polls showing almost 20 per cent of the voters still undecided who they want to lead the Jewish state into peace negotiations with the Arabs. About 80 per cent of the 2.5 million eligible voters are expected to cast ballots Tuesday in what could be the closest and most indecisive election in the history of the Jewish state. Latest poll's have shown a narrowing gap between the Labor party, which has governed since Israel's birth in 1948, and the conservative Likud faction.

Congress investigates Tris

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission is being asked to explain to Congress why it took so long to impose a limited ban on Tris, a suspected cancer-causing chemical. Members of a House commerce subcommittee want to learn why sales of Tris-treated children's sleepwear were permitted for a year after the commission was told the chemical causes cell mutations and could lead to birth defects.

Police find prostitution ring

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago police say an investigation of child pornography has led to evidence of a nationwide organization that allegedly lures runaway youths into becoming male prostitutes to serve wealthy homosexuals. The ring, headquartered in Chicago, has been sending young boys to all parts of the nation, police said Sunday. The Chicago Tribune reported that police in Chicago, Los Angeles and Dallas are participating in the investigation.

Mobsters divide gambling area

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Although casino gambling here is many months away, officials say mobsters, like legitimate businessmen and land speculators, are placing their bets early. Voters approved the idea of casino gambling last November. If state and local officials work out the details of regulation in time, gambling could start by late next winter. But even now, says FBI agent Louis Giovanetti, the FBI has "received indications that meetings have taken place for the purpose of dividing up the city — of who will take what."

the people's korner

May 12, 1977 Ida D. Cowell
Dear Mr. Blanton,
The people of Sikeston can now breathe easier. Our town is not lacking for entertainment. We have a choice — adult movies, adult book stores, game rooms, or the return of last Summer's sensational young lady to a local massage parlor.
Each year citizens are fined for allowing weeds to grow on their property. It seems strange that we should now sit back calmly as this corruption begins to choke our town.
Thank you,
Miss Ann O'Leary

Today's news in brief

Zambia in state of war

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — President Kenneth Kaunda said today Zambia is in a "state of war" with neighboring whiteruled Rhodesia.
Kaunda announced that the Zambian army had been placed on full alert and issued orders that any aircraft crossing into Zambian airspace from Rhodesia be "shot on sight."
"I wish to tell all Zambians today that we are in a state of war with Rhodesia," Kaunda told a news conference in this capital city.
"We will fight and I have already directed all my boys to shoot any Rhodesian planes on sight using Zambian airspace."
This black-governed country of five million people, on Rhodesia's northwestern border, has served as a base for black nationalist guerrillas fighting a four-year-old war to topple the white Rhodesian government. Mozambique and Botswana are other guerrilla bases for crossborder infiltration.

Mondale, Young resume tours

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Vice President Walter Mondale was meeting with top Portuguese officials today as Ambassador Andrew Young resumed his African tour after flying to Lisbon for a 90-minute discussion with the vice president. The Carter administration's ambassador to the United Nations flew up from West Africa to "touch base" with Mondale, who meets on Thursday with Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa in Vienna. The vice president announced that Young's controversial visit to South Africa next weekend is "definitely on."

20 percent undecided in Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Israeli election campaign ends today with public opinion polls showing almost 20 per cent of the voters still undecided who they want to lead the Jewish state into peace negotiations with the Arabs. About 80 per cent of the 2.5 million eligible voters are expected to cast ballots Tuesday in what could be the closest and most indecisive election in the history of the Jewish state. Latest polls have shown a narrowing gap between the Labor party, which has governed since Israel's birth in 1948, and the conservative Likud faction.

Congress investigates Tris

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission is being asked to explain to Congress why it took so long to impose a limited ban on Tris, a suspected cancer-causing chemical. Members of a House commerce subcommittee want to learn why sales of Tris-treated children's sleepwear were permitted for a year after the commission was told the chemical causes cell mutations and could lead to birth defects.

Police find prostitution ring

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago police say an investigation of child pornography has led to evidence of a nationwide organization that allegedly lures runaway youths into becoming male prostitutes to serve wealthy homosexuals. The ring, headquartered in Chicago, has been sending young boys to all parts of the nation, police said Sunday. The Chicago Tribune reported that police in Chicago, Los Angeles and Dallas are participating in the investigation.

Canadiens beat Bruins 2-1 to wrap up Stanley Cup finals

BOSTON (AP) — When the National Hockey League training camps opened last September, the major question was: Which club would go on to be beaten by the defending champion Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup final?

The Boston Bruins surprisingly "won" the honor. They bowed out in four straight games, as the mighty Canadiens scored a 2-1 overtime victory Saturday night for their 20th Stanley Cup title.

The training camps for the start of the 1977-78 season are a long summer away, but already another big question is being asked. How can the Bruins, Buffalo Sabres, New York Islanders, Philadelphia Flyers or any other hopeful improve enough to beat Montreal? "We'll be back, for sure," Boston Coach Don Cherry said. "They (the Canadiens) can't get any better, but we can. We'll be better in every way next year."

"We're not on a par with Montreal and we're not going to sit still," said Boston General Manager Harry Sinden.

Sinden is openly trying to lure Mark Howe, who has played out his contract with Houston of the World Hockey Association. Sinden thinks Howe could be another Guy Lafleur, the Canadiens' NHL scoring champion who was voted the most valuable player in the playoffs.

However, the Bruins, like other NHL clubs, figure to need more than a Mark Howe to match the Canadiens, who have incredible speed, hard, accurate shooters and a tough defense anchored by Larry Robinson, Serge Savard and Guy Lapointe with Ken Dryden in goal.

And, possibly even more important as Coach Scotty Bowman noted, "We're a young team." Montreal lost only eight of 80 regular-season games and two of 14 playoff contests en route to the NHL title.

"I doubt if any other team will ever match this record," Bowman said without trying to boast. "We started to win last fall and we just kept going."

"We are afraid to lose," added versatile Jim Roberts. "We want to win all the time."

Evangelista meets Ali tonight TV title bout

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Muhammad Ali returns to America's living rooms tonight, fighting a "Stranger in the Night" named Alfredo Evangelista.

"You all said, 'Who's Jimmy Young, who's Jimmy Young?'" Ali shouted. It was a reference to the now highly regarded Young, who was not a name fighter when he gave Ali such a rough going before losing a 15-round decision at the Capital Centre April 30, 1976.

But Young was not the unknown quantity that Evangelista is going into tonight's title fight at the Capital Centre and on ABC-TV.

Evangelista is a 22-year-old Spanish citizen from Uruguay. His record is 13-1-1 and is ranked

ed 10th by both the World Boxing Association and World Boxing Council.

He lost his last fight, to Lorenzo Zanon Feb. 4, and his knockout victims include Urtain, Lucien Rodriguez, Tony Moore, Rudi Lubbers and Lisoko Abibobele. He likes ravioli and Raquel Welch.

His most prominent win was his four-round knockout of Rodriguez, the Frenchman who recently won the European title by beating Jean-Pierre Coopman, an Ali victim on U.S. home television Feb. 20, 1976.

This will be Ali's fourth home-TV appearance in his last five fights — only his disputed decision over Ken Norton last Sept. 28 was not on home television. The televised fights were his five-round knockout of Coopman, his decision over Young and his five-round knockout of Richard Dunn May 24.

Ali is getting $2.7 million, Evangelista $85,000 for this television appearance which will be part of a tripleheader.

ABC will telecast from 8:30 p.m. EDT to 11 p.m. with the Ali fight set for about 10 p.m.

The other two fights will feature Roberto Duran of Panama, the WBA lightweight champion, and Alfredo Escalera of Puerto Rico, the WBC junior lightweight champ.

Duran will fight Jamier Muniz of Los Angeles in a 10-round non-title bout. Escalera will defend his title against Carlos Becerra of Pomona, Calif.

Vanduser still high after 5-2 softball win over Oran

ORAN — For the Vanduser Comets, their 5-2 victory over Oran Friday night meant more than just a tie for first place in the SeMo Fast Pitch Softball League.

"It was really big thing for us," said Harold Gravett, who drove in what proved to be the winning run with a fourth-inning single off Oran Ace John Watkins.

The victory had special significance for Vanduser, since two of Oran's stars — Watkins and Gary Owens — are from the Vanduser area. Owens played for the Comets last season before changing uniforms and playing with the Oran club.

"They've got a good shot at winning the state tournament," said Gravett about the Oran team, which shares the league leadership with Vanduser at this point in the young season. Both clubs have 3-1 records.

Watkins, the Oran star hurler who has led the Halter Gas team to victories in tournaments at Memphis and Dyersburg, Tenn. this season, was touched for three runs in five innings of work.

Vanduser hurler Bill Gilliland went the route for the Comets, giving up six hits — three of them on the infield.

Les Schatzley's blast off the right-centerfield fence in the first drove in Vanduser's first run of the game, but RBI-singles by Watkins and Henry Joe Dirnberger in the bottom of the inning put Oran up 2-1.

Basin Mays singled and scored after a walk, a passed ball and a wild pitch to tie the count for Vanduser in the second. It was Mays who doubled and scored on Gravett's single in the fourth to put the Comets up for good.

Jim Emerson clubbed an inside-the-park home run with a man on in the seventh to give the Comets two insurance tallies.

Blues deny rumors of bankruptcy

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Spokesmen for the financially-troubled St. Louis Blues have denied reports that the National Hockey League franchise is on the verge of declaring bankruptcy.

A story that the Blues might file for bankruptcy surfaced in Boston over the weekend after a meeting of the NHL was set back to June 8.

But team officials said they requested the delay in the league meeting because they felt they would have their situation in order by then.

Two weeks ago, owner Sidney Salomon Jr., citing poor health, said he and his son Sidney Salomon III were making "every effort possible" to sell the club.

A St. Louis newspaper, the Post-Dispatch, reported in its Sunday editions that the club so far had found no takers and that it may soon have to file for bankruptcy.

The Post-Dispatch said the Blues have been unable to close a deal with prospective buyers because of unfavorable mortgage conditions on The Arena and St. Louis's 5 1/2-per cent amusement tax.

But Jim Cullen, general counsel for the team, said the team is now negotiating with four prospective buyers.

"We're taking our time," Cullen said. "We're not under any gun. We want to do what's in the best interests of everyone."

Cullen denied rumors circulating in St. Louis that the team already had been sold. However, asked if a deal is near, Cullen said, "I hope it is. I think the date (of a deal) probably will be before the first of June. We're talking to each of the groups, to the CPAs, to their lawyers and to the groups again."

James Satterfield to win the feature race.

Another Sikestonian, Jim Brewer, had won the first heat in the Class, with Todd winning the second heat.

Jim Riley of Royalton, Ill. won the feature in Class B, beating out Gary Easton of Murphysboro. Easton had won the first heat, while Riley won the second.

Sikeston's Ronnie Burch won the feature race in the late model class, nipping Roy Yandell of Corning, Ark. at the finish. Burch won the first heat, with the second heat being taken by Earl Moore of Roubaur, Mo.

There will be an amateur race on next week's schedule at the Speedway.

Canadiens beat Bruins 2-1 to wrap up Stanley Cup finals

BOSTON (AP) — When the National Hockey League training camps opened last September, the major question was: Which club would go on to be beaten by the defending champion Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup final?

The Boston Bruins surprisingly "won" the honor. They bowed out in four straight games, as the mighty Canadiens scored a 2-1 overtime victory Saturday night for their 20th Stanley Cup title.

The training camps for the start of the 1977-78 season are a long summer away, but already another big question is being asked. How can the Bruins, Buffalo Sabres, New York Islanders, Philadelphia Flyers or any other hopeful improve enough to beat Montreal? "We'll be back, for sure," Boston Coach Don Cherry said. "They (the Canadiens) can't get any better, but we can. We'll be better in every way next year."

"We're not on a par with Montreal and we're not going to sit still," said Boston General Manager Harry Sinden.

Sinden is openly trying to lure Mark Howe, who has played out his contract with Houston of the World Hockey Association. Sinden thinks Howe could be another Guy Lafleur, the Canadiens' NHL scoring champion who was voted the most valuable player in the playoffs.

However, the Bruins, like other NHL clubs, figure to need more than a Mark Howe to match the Canadiens, who have incredible speed, hard, accurate shooters and a tough defense anchored by big Larry Robinson, Serge Savard and Guy Lapointe with Ken Dryden in goal.

And, possibly even more important as Coach Scotty Bowman noted, "We're a young team." Montreal lost only eight of 80 regular-season games and two of 14 playoff contests en route to the NHL title. "I doubt if any other team will ever match this record," Bowman said without trying to boast. "We started to win last fall and we just kept going."

"We are afraid to lose," added versatile Jim Roberts. "We want to win all the time."

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Muhammad Ali returns to America's living rooms tonight, fighting a "Stranger in the Night" named Alfredo Evangelista.

"You all said, 'Who's Jimmy Young, who's Jimmy Young?'" Ali shouted. It was a reference to the now highly regarded Young, who was not a name fighter when he gave Ali such a rough going before losing a 15-round decision at the Capital Centre April 30, 1976.

But Young was not the unknown quantity that Evangelista is going into tonight's title fight at the Capital Centre and on ABC-TV.

Evangelista is a 22-year-old Spanish citizen from Uruguay. His record is 13-1-1 and is ranked 10th by both the World Boxing Association and World Boxing Council.

He lost his last fight, to Lorenzo Zanon Feb. 4, and his knockout victims include Urtain, Lucien Rodriguez, Tony Moore, Rudi Lubbers and Lisoko Abibobele. He likes ravioli and Raquel Welch.

His most prominent win was his four-round knockout of Rodriguez, the Frenchman who recently won the European title by beating Jean-Pierre Coopman, an Ali victim on U.S. home television Feb. 20, 1976.

This will be Ali's fourth home-TV appearance in his last five fights — only his disputed decision over Ken Norton last Sept. 28 was not on home television. The televised fights were his five-round knockout of Coopman, his decision over Young and his five-round knockout of Richard Dunn May 24.

Ali is getting $2.7 million, Evangelista $85,000 for this television appearance which will be part of a tripleheader. ABC will telecast from 8:30 p.m. EDT to 11 p.m. with the Ali fight set for about 10 p.m.

The other two fights will feature Roberto Duran of Panama, the WBA lightweight champion, and Alfredo Escalera of Puerto Rico, the WBC junior lightweight champ.

Duran will fight Jamier Muniz of Los Angeles in a 10-round non-title bout. Escalera will defend his title against Carlos Becerril of Pomona, Calif.

Vanduser still high after 5-2 softball win over Oran

ORAN — For the Vanduser Comets, their 5-2 victory over Oran Friday night meant more than just a tie for first place in the SeMo Fast Pitch Softball League.

"It was really big thing for us," said Harold Gravett, who drove in what proved to be the winning run with a fourth-inning single off Oran Ace John Watkins.

The victory had special significance for Vanduser, since two of Oran's stars — Watkins and Gary Owens — are from the Vanduser area. Owens played for the Comets last season before changing uniform and playing with the Oran club.

"They've got a good shot at winning the state tournament," said Gravett about the Oran team, which shares the league leadership with Vanduser at this point in the young season. Both clubs have 3-1 records.

Watkins, the Oran star hurler who has led the Halter Gas team to victories in tournaments at Memphis and Dyersburg, Tenn. this season, was touched for three runs in five innings of work.

Vanduser hurler Bill Gilliland went the route for the Comets, giving up six hits — three of them on the infield.

Les Schatzky's blast off the right-centerfield fence in the first drove in Vanduser's first run of the game, but RBI-singles by Watkins and Henry Joe Dimberger in the bottom of the inning put Oran up 2-1.

Basin Mays singled and scored after a walk, a passed ball and a wild pitch to tie the count for Vanduser in the second. It was Mays who doubled and scored on Gravett's single in the fourth to put the Comets up for good.

Jim Emerson clubbed an inside-the-park home run with a man on in the seventh to give the Comets two insurance tallies.

Blues deny rumors of bankruptcy

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Spokesmen for the financially-troubled St. Louis Blues have denied reports that the National Hockey League franchise is on the verge of declaring bankruptcy.

A story that the Blues might file for bankruptcy surfaced in Boston over the weekend after a meeting of the NHL was set back to June 8.

But team officials said they requested the delay in the league meeting because they felt they would have their situation in order by then.

Two weeks ago, owner Sidney Salomon Jr., citing poor health, said he and his son Sidney Salomon III were making "every effort possible" to sell the club.

A St. Louis newspaper, the Post-Dispatch, reported in its Sunday editions that the club so far had found no takers and that it may soon have to file for bankruptcy.

The Post-Dispatch said the Blues have been unable to close a deal with prospective buyers because of unfavorable mortgage conditions on The Arena and St. Louis's 5 1/2-per cent amusement tax.

But Jim Cullen, general counsel for the team, said the team is now negotiating with four prospective buyers.

"We're taking our time," Cullen said. "We're not under any gun. We want to do what's in the best interests of everyone." Cullen denied rumors circulating in St. Louis that the team already had been sold. However, asked if a deal is near, Cullen said, "I hope it is. I think the date (of a deal) probably will be before the first of June. We're talking to each of the groups, to the CPAs, to their lawyers and to the groups again."

Woman, 82, builds new home for herself

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — The old house seemed too big and was hard to heat, so Mary Prater, 82, is building a new one for herself.

Last fall, Mrs. Prater single-handedly started construction of the home, next door to her present house which she built alone about seven years ago.

"Building is my hobby," Mrs. Prater said. She has built four or five of her own and has helped out on several others. "I can't keep away from it. I expect to build as long as I live."

She drafts her own blueprints, figures out how much material she needs, welds the hammer and saw, plumbs, wires the house and lays bricks.

About the only things that give Mrs. Prater problems are the "things that one person can't do by herself," she says, admitting

she calls for help to hoist the walls.

"I like porches and I like houses to have plenty of windows in them," she said. "Actually, I like to build houses, but I don't like to stay in them too much. I like the outside."

Commission asked to explain ban delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission is preparing to explain to Congress why it took so long to impose a limited ban on Tris, a suspected cancer-causing chemical.

The five commissioners were asked to appear today before a House commerce subcommittee to explain why sales of Tris-treated children's sleepwear were permitted for a year after the commission was told the chemical causes cell mutations and could lead to birth defects.

Members of the oversight and investigations subcommittee also indicated they want to learn why the commissioners are "dragging their feet," as one aide put it, in establishing pre-market testing standards for all toxic substances.

Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., who heads the subcommittee, was one of the congressional sponsors of legislation that set up the commission.

Until the ban, children's sleepwear was treated with Tris to make it meet federal flame retardant standards. The commission issued a ban on the sale of Tris-treated children's sleepwear April 8. At the same time, the agency ordered manufacturers to repurchase unwashed garments treated with Tris.

The manufacturers challenged the repurchase order and a federal district court judge ordered yarn, fabric and chemical manufacturers to share the repurchasing costs. A hearing on a further appeal is set for Wednesday.

Ann Landers

Woman urges records stay secret

Dear Ann: As a woman who gave up a child for adoption, may I express my views?

Several people are pressing for a change in legislation that would give adoptees access to their birth records. If such legislation is passed (and I hope it isn't) it must NOT be retroactive.

Several years ago, when I gave up my child for adoption, they promised me that my records would remain sealed forever -- to EVERYONE (including the child).

Most natural parents do not want a child of the past to suddenly enter their lives. If my child ever comes into MY life, I will sue everyone involved.

Please advise adoptees that unexpected exposure of the past can cause a great deal of damage, heartache and even break up an otherwise good marriage. -- Sealed Forever (I Hope!)

Dear Sealed: I always have taken the position that adoption records should remain sealed -- forever -- to everyone -- and I shall continue to hold that line, in spite of mounting pressure from the opposition.

I tell all adoptees who write to me, "Your REAL parents are the people who raised you. Don't go poking around. You may regret it."

Dear Ann Landers: I am a telephone solicitor. My job isn't the best way to get to know the public. We phone people morning, noon and night and I realize could get on a person's nerves, but why don't THEY realize that they can get on our nerves, too?

When I was a kid, I remember my mother teaching us manners. I'm only 20 years old and it seems like manners are rapidly going out of style.

We talk to at least a hundred people a day. Would you believe that 50 per cent of the time we end up getting a receiver slammed in our ear? Not so much as a "No, thank you" or a "Goodbye." We just end up talking to ourselves.

Please print this letter to let people know there's a human being on the -- Other End Of The Line.

Dear O.E.L.: Here's your letter -- and I hope it helps. "No, thank you" takes just a second to say. How about it, folks?

Dear Ann Landers: My husband died of lung cancer last year. He was a heavy smoker and the doctor said his cancer was caused by cigarettes.

I am writing to ask why newspapers don't say "cancer" in the obituary? I see "heart attack" often, but cancer is rarely mentioned.

My husband never missed reading the death notices. I'm sure if he had seen "lung cancer" in the obituaries five or ten times he would have given up cigarettes long before he did. (He stopped smoking in 1970, but the doctor said it was too late.)

Please answer in the paper. It might give some of those editors an idea. Thank you. -- Stockton, Calif.

Dear Stock: Most newspapers follow the wishes of the next of kin in specifying the cause of death.

I am not at all sure a nicotine addict would quit smoking if he read "Mr. So-And-So died of lung cancer." Most people never think it will happen to them. It's always "the other fellow."

Are drugs O.K. if you learn how to control them? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers's new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (24 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — I bought a small and inexpensive fish bowl to use when mixing small dabs of whipped cream, mayonnaise, etc. with my hand egg beater. The beater fits nicely into the opening and the contents do not splash out as I beat.

A discarded suitcase makes a great portable sewing center. The side pockets hold pattern, scissors, tape measure, thread, etc. and when work is finished for the day everything can be folded and put away in the case to be stored in a small place. — MRS. R.L.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, May 16, the 136th day of 1977. There are 229 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1871, British Columbia became a province of the Dominion of Canada.
On this date:
In 1639, what is now Newport, R.I., was founded.
In 1770, Marie Antoinette was married to King Louis the 16th of France.
In 1927, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that bootleggers must file income tax returns.
In 1929, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences awarded its first Oscars — to Janet Gaynor and Emil Jannings.
In 1960, a Big Four summit conference in Paris collapsed as the Soviets leveled spy charges against the U.S. after the shooting down of an American U-2 reconnaissance plane

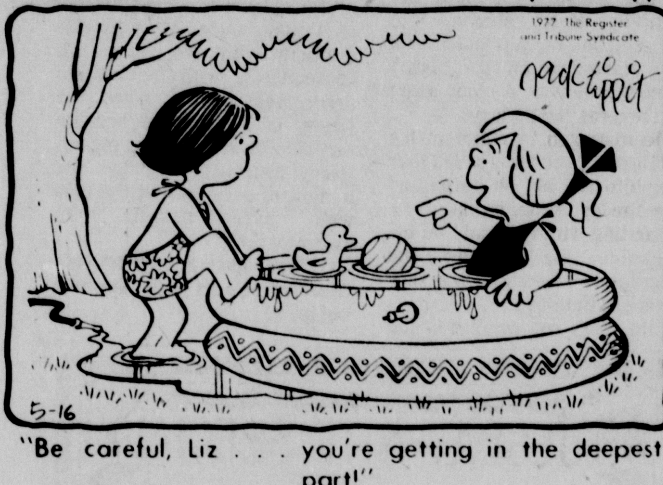

over the U.S.S.R.
In 1974, Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia signed a document making him president for life.
Ten years ago: Chairman William McChesney Martin of the Federal Reserve Board warned that stock market speculation at that time resembled the boom which preceded the Great Depression.
Five years ago: Secretary of the Treasury John Connally resigned from the Nixon Cabinet, and George Shultz was picked as a successor.
One year ago: The civil war in Lebanon reached a new peak of violence, with scores of people killed in fighting between Christians and Moslems in Beirut.
Today's birthday: Actor Henry Fonda is 72 years old.

Rotary Auction starts today Looking back

Sikeston will have its first radio — cable TV auction beginning today under the sponsorship of the Sikeston Rotary Club. The auction will run through Friday.

Area businessmen have donated many valuable items that will be sold to the highest bidder. Many items will be listed in the Daily Standard in advance of each day's auction.

The auction will be heard on radio station KSIM and seen on cable Channel 4 from 5:30 p.m. until 7 p.m. To bid on items, interested persons must call 472-0244.

Those receiving the bid may pay for the item and pick up a receipt at the auction studio at 217 Tanner St. (former location of SeMor Cable TV).

Anyone wishing to pay by mail may send a check payable to the Sikeston Rotary Club, P.O. Box 311. A paid receipt will be required to redeem the item from the donor. The majority of the items will remain in the donors' business until sold.

All items sold will be listed on the blackboard showing the item number, description, donor's name, retail value, last bidder's name and the amount of the bid. There will be six to twelve items and the last bid can be seen on Channel 4.

This will give the public an opportunity to see all items and any change in bids. There will be three telephone lines to receive bids. The auctioneers will describe the items on the radio and cable simultaneously.

Rotarians will continue to call on local businessmen through Wednesday for donations and anyone wishing to donate an item can contact Ed Ring, Alan Laffoon or Bob Shaner.

Proceeds from the auction will be used for the Turn In A Pusher program and for four Southeast Missouri State University Scholarships, scouts and other community projects.

That day the Lord made a covenant with Abraham, saying: "Unto thy seed have I given this land."

Nina Mitchell is May Queen

60 years ago
May 16, 1917

L. C. Erdmann went to Cape Girardeau Tuesday to drive over a new Buick car, which the General Garage had received by way of that town.

A feature not heretofore given by the Sikeston schools during the closing exercises of the school year is a May Pageant, presented today under the direction of Miss Betty Whiteford, music supervisor of the school, in Malone Park. Miss Nina Mitchell was chosen as May queen, and her attendants are: Ruth Horning, Cora Matthews, Roberta Noble, Mabel Barnett, Irene Robinson, Elizabeth Adams, Louise McGee, Geneva Norrid, Iva Milem, Martha Moore, Eunice Layton, Ruth Baker, Effie Graham, and Pearl Meldrum. Public School notes. Miss Maude Phillips spent last weekend at her home at Bloomfield.

J. G. Powell of Bertrand was a Sikeston visitor last Friday.

50 years ago
May 16, 1927

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kendall are now located at Mercedes, Tex.

The Sikeston Natatorium will be opened for the season May 15. The seventh grade, chaperoned by Miss Agnes Erley, hiked to Applegate's Grove Wednesday afternoon and had a wieners roast and marshmallow toast.

The senior class and faculty of the high school enjoyed a boat excursion Wednesday. Quite a number of the boys were unable to go as they were doing National Guard duty in Poplar Bluff.

Charleston — Mrs. Carl Daugherty and little daughter of Hammond, Ind., are here visiting her father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Daugherty.

The building on Front street, known as the Catholic Parish Hall, was sold on Wednesday to Dr. H. M. Kendig, who will have the structure razed and stored for use in future building. Workmen started removing the plumbing and heating plant Thursday.

J. F. Hoffman, inventor of various types of novelty furniture and children's scooters and toys, of Chicago, Ill., was in Sikeston, Tuesday, making investigations concerning the possibility of locating a furniture and novelty factory here that would employ approximately 400 people.

Fred Burger of Bonne Terre, Mo., has been selected by the school board to fill the position of Ried Jann, who has resigned.

Funeral services were held Wednesday for Rudell Flanery Daniel, whose death occurred Tuesday, after an illness of seven weeks.

30 years ago
May 16, 1947

Mr. and Mrs. G. Moore Greer have sold their home, 505 North Ranney, to Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Nienstedt. Mr. and Mrs. Greer expect to build something temporarily on the Greer Estate, west of Sikeston on Highway 60, and will reside in same until a permanent home will be built.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cowell are parents of a son born on the 13th at the Sikeston General Hospital. He has been named Terry Wayne.

Mrs. Amanda Holder, 84 years old, of Morley, died Thursday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Arnold Sillman at Cape Girardeau.

Sikeston's first 1947 heat wave, a forecast of things to come, arrived in town this week for an unspecified length of time. Maximum temperatures of 85 degrees were recorded on Tuesday and Wednesday with a 60 degree low on Tuesday and 61 on Wednesday.

20 years ago
May 16, 1957

Rikki Leslie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leslie, will be featured soloist with the Sikeston High School band in their "Pop" concert tomorrow evening. Rikki plays solo cornet with the band and has been a member of the cornet trio for the past three years.

Cindy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Williams, observed her sixth birthday Wednesday with a picnic at the City Park.

Two seniors, Rikki Leslie and John Genins, were elected as co-captains of the Sikeston High School Bulldogs baseball squad at a Tuesday meeting of the high school team.

Eddie Fuchs announced today that J. D. "Jim" Sidwell has joined the staff of SEMO Motor Co., as salesman for new cars and truck and used cars.

What's the law?

The case of the courageous pop

By JACK STRAUSS, L.L.B.

Harry took his two children to an amusement park where he bought tickets for a ride called the Jet Slide. They were handed a burlap bag and, along with other brave patrons, they began to climb a steep, several-tiered stairway to the top of the slide.

Halfway up, Harry looked at the ground below and gulped at the height. Nevertheless, he concealed his fears and courageously continued the climb.

Upon reaching the top of the stairway, Harry climbed into the sack, as he saw others do, and started down the highly waxed slide with a stout heart and several "Hail Marys."

He managed to maintain his cool until he suddenly sailed four feet into the air as he passed over the last of four humps.

Landing with a "thud" on his backside, Harry sued the proprietor of the slide for a very severe back injury.

"He can't sue me," was the defense. "By Harry's own admission, he was frightened when he was halfway up the stairway. By not going back down, he assumed the risk of injury."

"What? And have my kids think I was 'chicken,'" responded Harry. "I couldn't do that. Nobody else turned back."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you find that by refusing to be "chicken," Harry assumed the risk of injury?

This is how the judge ruled: NO. The judge held that Harry could not have assumed the risk of injury since he was unfamiliar with the ride and, consequently, with the risk. An amusement device, noted the judge, is designed to provide thrills without providing injury. Harry, concluded the judge, had a right to assume that the ride was safe despite its awesomeness.

The Prayer

"Behold, I lay in Sion a chief corner stone... Unto you therefore which believe he is precious." (1 Peter 2:6-7)

PRAYER: Dear Savior and Lord, our hearts are humble before Thee as we remember the richness of Thy love and the wisdom of Thy control. Forgive our resisting Thy guidance and teach us Thy way, O Lord. Amen.

Abundant Oxygen

Oxygen is the most abundant element of our environment. It constitutes by weight, half the earth's crust, 8/9th of water, 2/3rds of human and animal bodies, half of plant tissues and 1/5th of the air.

In Case You Didn't Know

It now costs about $1,700 a year for a student to attend a public college in the United States, up from about $1,000 in 1967. And the cost of attending a private college is more than twice as much, jumping from $2,100 in 1967 to nearly $3,600 now. The Conference Board reports.

2. Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere gratitude for all the kindnesses and courtesies extended to us at the passing of our loved one, Lula Doolin, and to thank those who assisted at the services, those who sent the lovely flowers and thoughtful gifts of food. We appreciate the kindness of the staff of the Nunnelee Funeral Chapel. In memory of our loved one - the family of Lula Doolin.

We sincerely appreciate the kindnesses and courtesies extended to us at the time of our accident. We especially thank the Crossroads CB Club, and the area churches, clubs, and organizations for their donations, cards, letters, calls, and prayers. Words can never express the heartfelt thanks we feel from your thoughtfulness. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Casey and sons

In Case You Didn't Know

It now costs about $1,700 a year for a student to attend a public college in the United States, up from about $1,000 in 1967. And the cost of attending a private college is more than twice as much, jumping from $2,100 in 1967 to nearly $3,600 now. The Conference Board reports.

2. Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere gratitude for all the kindnesses and courtesies extended to us at the passing of our loved one, Lula Doolin, and to thank those who assisted at the services, those who sent the lovely flowers and thoughtful gifts of food. We appreciate the kindness of the staff of the Nunnelee Funeral Chapel. In memory of our loved one — the family of Lula Doolin.

We sincerely appreciate the kindnesses and courtesies extended to us at the time of our accident. We especially thank the Crossroads CB Club, and the area churches, clubs, and organizations for their donations, cards, letters, calls, and prayers. Words can never express the heartfelt thanks we feel from our thoughtfulness. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Casey and sons

New holiday would honor earmuff inventor

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — The invention of the earmuff 100 years ago by Chester Greenwood may be observed in Maine on the first day of winter every year.

A bill to designate Dec. 21 as Chester Greenwood Day cleared its first hurdle in the Maine House on Thursday after sharp and sometimes humorous debate.

"In my opinion, it's an attempt to ridicule this house," Rep. Laurie G. Biron, D-Lewiston, said of the bill. "It's a waste of taxpayers' time and money."

But Rep. Richard G. Morton, R-Farmington, said the measure would generate considerable publicity for Maine's winter sports, that no holiday from work would be involved and that the observance would not require any additional spending.

Chester Greenwood, a native of Farmington, invented the earmuff when he was 15 years old. He died in 1937 at the age of 79.

Free film available to public groups

COLUMBIA — The future of Missouri and Missourians is the subject of a new color film available at no charge from the University of Missouri for showing before civic clubs, service organizations and other groups concerned with the realities of the next quarter-century.

A 17-minute film, "Missouri Tomorrow," offers assessments by some of the University's leading scholars of the major problems to be dealt with—energy consumption, maintenance of a high standard of living, food production and urban decay, among others.

The film is produced by the University's award-winning cinematographer, David J. McAllister, of University Information Services.

Intent of the film is to stimulate thought and discussion, and help audiences realize that there are serious challenges ahead but that something can be done about them.

Persons interested in borrowing the film should write to University Information Services, 400 Lewis Hall, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo. 65201, or phone 314-882-4591.

Connecticut is sometimes referred to as the "Nutmeg State."

Risco baccalaureate to be held May 22

RISCO — The baccalaureate service for the 1977 Risco High School graduates will be at 8 p.m. on May 22, and commencement exercises will be conducted May 24 at 8 p.m. at the high school.

The Rev. Gene Lancaster will deliver the baccalaureate sermon, and the Rev. Paul Cannon will voice the invocation and benediction.

The processional and recessional "God of Our Fathers" will be played by Mrs. Clarice Goldsmith, pianist.

Selections by the Risco High School chorus will include "Let There Be Peace on Earth" and "I Believe."

Dr. Frank Linn, professor of education at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, will be the guest speaker at the commencement exercises.

The processional and recessional "Pomp and Circumstance" will be played by Mrs. Goldsmith.

The high school chorus will sing "This World in Yours!", which will be followed by the introduction of the speaker by Superintendent Robert Shaw, who will also present awards.

Diplomas will be presented to the graduates by Van Gibbs, president of the board of education. The Rev. Ervin Razer will deliver the invocation and benediction.

Sikestonian inducted into honor society

EUGENE, Ore. — Twenty-four students at the University of Oregon have been elected by the UO journalism faculty to membership in the George Turnbull chapter of Kappa Tau Alpha, national scholastic honorary society in journalism, including William Lingle son of Mr. & Mrs. William R. Lingle, 836 Matthews Ave., Sikeston.

Kappa Tau Alpha has chapters on 40 college and university campuses. Its members are selected on the basis of scholastic achievement and professional promise. Those eligible include graduating seniors in the top 10 per cent of their class and graduate students who have compiled outstanding records in graduate level work.

The UO chapter named for the late George S. Turnbull, a former dean of the University's School of Journalism.

struck large rocks. A bicyclist Bobby Williams, 19, of Canalou received moderate injuries Sunday when he was struck by an unidentified vehicle.

The patrol said the Williams youth was riding his bicycle south on Route E, a half mile north of Route H in New Madrid County, at 7:55 a.m. when he was struck by an unidentified vehicle, also southbound, that left the scene at a high rate of speed.

The Williams youth was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

John Joseph Lawley, 21, of Cape Girardeau, received minor injuries in a motorcycle car accident at 5:40 p.m. Sunday on Highway 34, one mile west of Jackson.

The patrol said the accident occurred when a car driven south by Daniel Lee Dickerson, 30, Jackson, was unable to stop behind a vehicle that was stopped behind the Dickerson car. Lawley swerved his motorcycle into the other lane and struck the Dickerson car.

Lawley was taken to St. Francis Medical Center in Cape Girardeau.

Do you remember when... The Scott County Milling Company came to Sikeston?

The parent company of The Scott County Milling Company had its origin in Sikeston in 1893 and was known as G. B. Greer and Company with G. B. Greer, U. G. Holley and W. C. Bowman as owners. This mill was located at the present site of the new water plant and was known as Mill B for many years. In June of 1896, the business was incorporated and the name changed to the Greer-Bowman Milling Co. with G.B. Greer, Charles D. Matthews, U. G. Holley and W. C. Bowman as stockholders. In 1898 John D. Ebert acquired an interest in the company and became an officer and director. In 1899 W. C. Bowman sold his interest in the company and acquired a flour mill at Dexter which was incorporated as the Dexter Milling Company. In 1901 the name of the Greer-Bowman Milling Company was changed to Greer-Ebert Milling Company. In 1902 C. D. Matthews and W. C. Bowman organized the Bowman-Matthews Milling Company and built the plant in Sikeston known as Mill A. At the same time the Greer-Ebert Milling Company built a plant at Oran. In 1904 the Greer-Ebert Milling Company and the Bowman-Matthews Milling Company were consolidated and the name changed to the Scott County Milling Company. In 1907 The Scott County Milling Company acquired the Dexter Milling Company of Dexter.

The Scott County Milling Company originally began operations as a flour and corn mill. Then it began to produce Gristo Feed to take advantage of the flour and corn mill by products. Later the firm discontinued its flour and corn meal production and is now a major grain buyer and feed producer for this area and the mid south.

In 1965 the company bought the Semo Grain Co. with elevators at Buffalo Island, Diehlstadt, Morley, Vanduser, Bell City and Delta.

Semo Grain was operated as a wholly owned subsidiary of The Scott County Milling Company.

On December 1, 1976, The Scott County Milling Company and Semo Grain Company, its wholly owned subsidiary, was sold to Cargill, Inc., of Minneapolis, Minnesota.

The Bank of Sikeston is honored to have had the pleasure of serving as the depository for the Scott County Milling Company through these many years and we're looking forward to serving the present owners, Cargill Inc. of Minneapolis, Minnesota in the future.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

By RAYMOND CREWS

Scores of successful advertisers know the magic in the word "you". Their ads stress benefits and advantages for your convenience, your comfort, your savings and economies, your safety, your protection, your pride, etc. Their ads talk in terms of "you" - not themselves. Their successes prove their method is not a hackneyed formula. A lesson can be learned from this.

People can and will profit if they put the other fellow's interest ahead of their own. People can make a better world for all to live in - if individuals place themselves and their interests behind those of others. It is a long established truth that when one cares enough for God and his fellow man, one can easily place himself in the third spot. It is also a proved, unsurprising truth that when this is done, one can live more happily... and successfully...

New holiday would honor earmuff inventor

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — The invention of the earmuff 100 years ago by Chester Greenwood may be observed in Maine on the first day of winter every year.

A bill to designate Dec. 21 as Chester Greenwood Day cleared its first hurdle in the Maine House on Thursday after sharp and sometimes humorous debate.

"In my opinion, it's an attempt to ridicule this house," Rep. Laurier G. Biron, D-Lewiston, said of the bill. "It's a waste of taxpayers' time and money."

But Rep. Richard G. Morton, R-Farmington, said the measure would generate considerable publicity for Maine's winter sports, that no holiday from work would be involved and that the observance would not require any additional spending.

Chester Greenwood, a native of Farmington, invented the earmuff when he was 15 years old. He died in 1937 at the age of 79.

Free film available to public groups

COLUMBIA — The future of Missouri and Missourians is the subject of a new color film available at no charge from the University of Missouri for showing before civic clubs, service organizations and other groups concerned with the realities of the next quarter-century.

A 17-minute film, "Missouri Tomorrow," offers assessments by some of the University's leading scholars of the major problems to be dealt with—energy consumption, maintenance of a high standard of living, food production and urban decay, among others.

The film is produced by the University's award-winning cinematographer, David J. McAllister, of University Information Services.

Intent of the film is to stimulate thought and discussion, and help audiences realize that there are serious challenges ahead but that something can be done about them.

Persons interested in borrowing the film should write to University Information Services, 400 Lewis Hall, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo. 65201, or phone 314-882-4591.

Connecticut is sometimes referred to as the "Nutmeg State."
